As medical professionals treated attendees for illnesses like influenza and malaria, the atmosphere was filled with energy and hope. The highlight of the event was the captivating performances by disabled children, joined by volunteers and caregivers, showcasing their talents and promoting social inclusion. The celebration culminated in a delicious meal, cake, gifts, and fun, leaving all 181 attendees feeling uplifted and inspired.

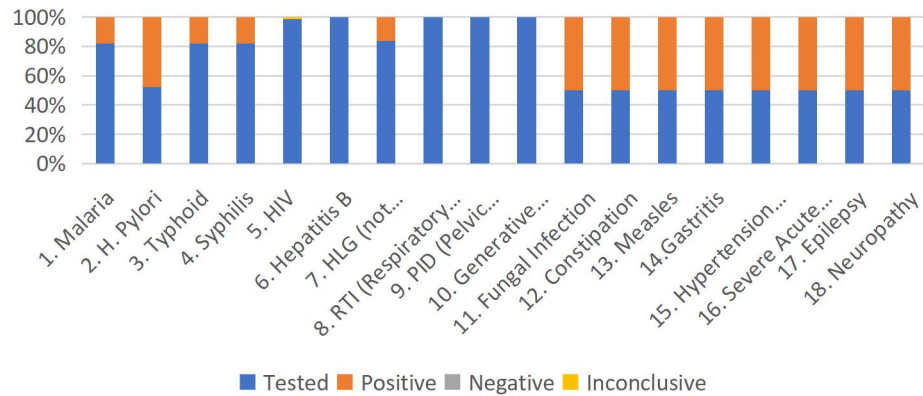

The event was full of life as medically, attendees were reached out too and had to go home with better health and a package. It was very outstanding having Norah perform a mime thankful to God for the day and the joy she experienced.

It was a moment of reflection for the rest of the attendees as they saw the excitement on her face and life during performance and this could not leave them in their seats. The people kept coming one by one and they gifted her money and she was the luckiest person on the day. “My Christmas is finished” That was the statement she said. She was overjoyed and grateful for the team organizing the day which was such a moment of purpose and justification for the organizers of the event. For just in her statement the event paid off.

Output(s)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Attendance: 181 attendees (47.5% PWDs, 52.5% caregivers/volunteers/leaders) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - 86 PWDs (100% received medical support or gifts) - 95 caregivers/volunteers/leaders (participated in event organization and support) • Medical Services: 95 individuals treated (56 PWDs, 39 caregivers) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - 65% treated for malaria - 25% treated for influenza - 10% treated for other conditions • Performances: 15 showcases of PWD talents (60% music/dance, 20% poetry, 20% drama) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - 1 standout performance by Norah (mime) received donations and recognition • Gifts Distributed: 20 families supported (100% vulnerable PWD households) • 5. Partnerships: Collaboration with 2 priests, 1 sheik, 5 medical professionals, and 9 volunteers
Issues / Challenges (During the implementation)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Logistical hurdles: Limited funding and resources constrained event scope, but teamwork ensured success. • Accessibility barriers: 8 PWDs faced mobility challenges due to lack of wheelchairs; transporting them from their homes to the venue and back was a struggle, relying on a single hired car which made multiple trips. • 3. Resource constraints: Insufficient funds limited entertainment options and distribution of organizational T-shirts (given to 20 PWDs and volunteers).
Lessons learnt	1. Collaboration is key: Teamwork and partnerships with local leaders, medical professionals, and volunteers ensured event success despite limited resources. 2. Accessibility matters: Investing in wheelchairs and transport support would improve PWD participation, experience, and also facilitate future outreaches to reach families in need.

	3. Preparation is crucial: More funding and planning can enhance entertainment, gifts, and overall attendee experience. 4. Community impact: Events like this strengthen bonds and inspire hope among PWDs and caregivers.
Recommendation(s)	Invest in accessibility tools: Acquire wheelchairs and arrange reliable transport for PWDs to improve participation and outreach effectiveness. Scale up funding efforts: Seek more grants, partnerships, and donations to enhance event scope, gifts, and support services. Expand community engagement: Strengthen partnerships with local government, faith groups, and NGOs to amplify disability inclusion initiatives. Plan for sustainability: Develop strategies for consistent support to PWDs, including follow-up medical services and economic empowerment programs.
Conclusion	The International Day of Persons with Disabilities celebration by A Hand to the Disabled (H2D) was a resounding success, showcasing community power and inclusivity. Despite challenges, the event empowered PWDs, promoted awareness, and strengthened partnerships. H2D remains committed to fostering disability-inclusive societies and advancing social progress. We're looking forward to December 3, 2026!
